WHY NORMAL SCHOOL SHOULD HAVE CRACK CADET CORPS

A number of patriotic students of the Normal are endeavoring to organize a cadet corps for drill purposes, believing there is plenty of material among the young men to get together a crack corps that would be a credit to the institution.

Some objections are being made because it is argued that it "teaches militarism;" other arguments are also made against it.

Southern state schools have cadet corps and are proud of them, including the Indian school at Phoenix, which now has a company of crack soldiers doing border duty.

While it is true that no mother desires to raise her son to be a soldier—nor does a father, for that matter, he has strong hopes that his son will not be the one that is pointed out as one who has no interest in the welfare of his country, more than what he can get out of it.

Wyoming's answer to the charge of "militarism" is, after five years' trial: "Teach the school boys to live true, think true, and shoot true."

It is the game of life to be true; sacrificing for principle for a temporary gain is not the great game of life as taught us in the good book; life is worth but little if it does not make a mark, however small, on the great national escutcheon, to be scanned by future generations.

Few hope for war, and the day will come when there will be no wars, but it is not coming through the efforts of those who are for peace at any price, or the ones who are willing to admit they are mentally and physically inferior.

The great minds of the country of today are for a "preparedness," both spiritually and physically—we are all for peace, but not for the kind that Pontus Pilate so carefully washed his hands of.

The average common school boy finds his physical level in a mighty short time after he starts in at school. Nations today are doing the same thing.

America is an amalgamation of nations, with broader views, broader confines and broader men; and the great slogan should be: "We Want MEN."

The organization of the local corps is a small affair, but it is one of the things that brings about the effectiveness of the nation.

"THE UNITED STATES WANTS MEN"—the kind that Belgium and Germany had at Liege—not only morally, but physically.

No mother that ever breathed ever raised a son, but that she did not hope and thoroughly believe was a soldier, militant or otherwise, and one that would be a man among men under all circumstances.

Organization, discipline and a man or woman's duty should be taught in all schools.

A cadet corps in the Normal would be an aid to that school and a credit to Flagstaff.

BATTLESHIP ARIZONA IN COMMISSION TODAY

The superdreadnaught Arizona, the biggest war vessel in the United States navy at the time of her launching in June, 1915, will be placed in commission September 15, it was announced today at the New York navy yard, where she was built. The ceremony will be performed by Captain John D. McDonald, assigned to command the ship.

The Arizona is a sister ship of the Pennsylvania, commissioned at Norfolk last June. Her keel was laid March 6, 1914. She is 608 feet long and displaces 31,400 tons. Her speed is expected to exceed 22 knots. Her main battery consists of twelve 14-inch guns.

WANTS PRODUCE EXHIBITS FOR THE STATE FAIR

County Immigration Commissioner Allen desires to advise the ranchers of the county that owing to ill health, he will not be able to personally attend the state and northern Arizona fairs this year in charge of the products of the ranchers and others, but will be pleased to have any such products brought in to him and he will see that they are properly taken care of and sent to the proper superintendent of the two fairs.

If you have anything to offer this year, and there seems to have been plenty of prize stuff raised this year on the different ranches in the county, send it in to him, as Coconino county should by all means be represented.

F. O. ALLEN,
County Immigration Commissioner.
Flagstaff, Ariz.

"What's the rural credits measure?" asked the female politician. "I believe it's to allow farmers to deposit squashes as security, or something like that," replied Mr. Tenderfoot from the east.

REGISTRATION FIGURES WILL BE DECEIVING

That the figures showing the registration before the primary may not be taken as any indication of the voting strength of the democratic and republican parties in the state is clear to all who have followed the course of events in Arizona the past summer.

The republicans have only two contests on their state and congressional ticket. They have few contests for county offices. On the other hand, the democrats have contests for nearly every office, congressional, state and county. The primary fight for the democratic nomination for governor has been extended into every precinct in the state, however small, and the republicans everywhere have been enjoined to register at once to help dispose of Hunt, at the primaries. Democrats having contests for county offices have told their republican friends that they could do no good by voting at the republican primaries and have urged them to register as democrats to help them out in local fights.

Practically all of the county recorders in the state are democrats. That they and their deputies have been urging republicans to vote as Democrats is well known. Those recorders and others who have prevailed upon republicans to swear that they are democrats are guilty of subornation of perjury.

This is the first year Arizona voters have expressed their party preference when registering for the primaries. The Hunt-Olney fight and minor democratic contests have caused a distorting of majority. If this has the result of giving the democrats a lot of over confidence, it may not turn out so bad for the republicans after all.

The total registration prior to the primaries was only 63,144. It is variously estimated that there are from 80,000 to 85,000 voters in the state. After election an effort will be made to get the twenty or twenty-five per cent to register, and these registrations will tell an entirely different story and will be a much better indication as to how the voters of the state stand between the two great political parties.

Now that the woman's party is at work organizing the women of the state and the republicans have established a woman's bureau in connection with the state committee and a woman's campaign committee in connection with the national committee, it is expected that many women who have not registered will take this step after the primary and be prepared to exercise the franchise this fall. The fact that this is a presidential year will stimulate this registration.

The democrats may be expected to make extravagant claims when the registration figures are made public, but every thinking voter will consider what has been going on in his own community in the way of persuading republicans to vote as democrats, and will not attach any real significance to the figures, which will show a considerable disparity between republican and democratic registration, especially in some of the counties where the fight between Olney and Hunt has been waging the fiercest.

SPECIAL POLITICAL DOPE TO THE COCONINO SUN

(Special dispatch to the Sun)
Senator Ashurst wired Ed. Priest that he would start for home Sunday. He will arrive in Arizona as soon as the train crosses the state line.

(Special dispatch to the Sun)
William Jennings Bryan, who has attained more than a local reputation, passed through Flagstaff Sunday. He was riding on a train. There were other passengers on the train. The train stopped here. After the train had transacted its regular business, having come from the east, continued on its way toward Ash Fork. The engine was dragged along by steam, caused by burning oil. There was a regular fireman and engineer on the train. There was also a Trappahen conductor. A number of other employees of the road were on the train helping it along. The engineer caused the whistle to whistle as it came into town. Air brakes were used when the train stopped. It took water here. Oil was used to boil the water that made the steam that was used in propelling the engine. The conductor said "all aboard" before the train started to leave. It is reported around town that Mr. Bryan and Eugene Debs have been candidates for the office of president. If any of them had been elected they would have to move to Washington, as it is reliably reported that most presidents have lived there from time to time. Mr. Bryan is not going to move his family to Flagstaff this year because it is too far from Nebraska, a town north of Kansas somewhere.

POPULAR FOREST OFFICER MARRIED AT EL PASO

Assistant District Forester John Kerr, who is well known here, was married to Miss Bertha L. Marckoff, at El Paso on September 4th. Cards have been received announcing the fact that they will be at home in Albuquerque after October 1st, next.

Mrs. Kerr has been chief clerk in the office of grazing for a number of years, and was one of the most efficient clerks ever in the district office. She served a temporary detail in the forest supervisor's office here last year. Her home is in Illinois.

Mr. Kerr is one of the pioneers of the forest service, starting in as a ranger in the old Gila forest and was later promoted to supervisor; he was transferred to the Lincoln forest, then to the Datil, finally being promoted to assistant district forester in charge of grazing for the district.

He has many warm friends locally who will be pleased to know of his recently acquired happiness.

WANT BETTER ROADS FROM PAYSON TO FLAGSTAFF

The Payson, Ariz., News says: The road building is continuing unabated, and it will not be long before autoists can make the trip from Globe to Phoenix or Phoenix to Flagstaff with comparative ease. One piece of road that should receive the attention of the supervisors and be built is the Fossil Creek road, because it is the only road in the winter when the weather becomes bad. If this road is not built, people will have to do as heretofore during the winter—come to Payson from the lower country, turn around, go back to Phoenix to reach Flagstaff, Winslow and other northern towns.
